I again purpose in 1907, as in 1906, asking for more of these engines. 11th Class.--These engines have proved satisfactory. The opening of the WitbankBrakpan section rendered necessary the transfer of several of these from Pretoria to Gerniistou. Fome of this class are now out of service temporarily, as there is insufficient work for them on those sections of the line built or strengthened to admit of their use. This has to a great extent been brought about by the shorter mileage from Johannesburg to Witbank and the easier grade on the new line. B Class--These are mainly employed on the Rand tram on local passenger servicealso as shunting engines; but should be replaced on passenger work by an improved and larger double-bogied tank engine, the general design of which I have had drawn out for some months. I...
