We've gone from hardware to software, from selling tangible things such as railroads, cars, and airplanes to selling less tangible ones such as information services. In fact, services grew from thirty-one pct of U.S. economic output in 1950 to 55 percent in 1998 . In this book, Future Wealth, authors Stan Davis and Christopher Meyer explain why they think we're headed toward a new stage of economic development in which "human and intellectual capital [is] the most highly valued resource." . Remember how David Bowie offered his Bowie Bonds a few years back, essentially leasing out his future earnings from royalties and concert revenues so he could garner fifty-five million up front . Well, that is only the beginning, say the authors of this fascinating book . Today thousands of people we've never heard of accept signing bonuses to...
